

Satellite radio has been a welcome addition to my daily 50 mile (one way) commute to work. No longer do I have to listen to listen to DJs spewing mindless jibberish. The addition of continuous Traffic and Weather reports provides me with almost instant access to information so that I can plan to avoid problem areas.

If the FCC was to limit Satellite radio's ability to inform, it would not force me back to listening to commercial radio. On the contrary, it would further alienate me from listening to commercial radio in my home.
